Goodbred Pitches Final Contest Against Barons

BY COYLE SHEA.

Tiny Goodbred, the human hippo, will probably draw the assignment Thursday in the final game of the series between the Chicks and the Barons. And what would otherwise have been Sergt. York day, and the greatest celebration in the history of the Memphis club, will merely be getaway afternoon for Birmingham.

Extensive preparations had been made to entertain the world war hero and it was further hoped out to have the shaperooter take a shot at a tussle, using a baseball for the purpose, in place of the accustomed bullet.

York crossed the committee, however, and pulled his freight for home. Therefore, the festivities are off and Goodbred will toss the first pill without an introduction.

Though we have had no inside tip on the situation we're willing to lay a rubber yard against a toothpick that the mountain was cross-questioned into a frothing wreck by a flock of news editors. When he reached the end of human endurance he decided it was much quieter in Paul Mall than in Memphis. Postscript—aceto and "part too sweet." All aboard for Paul Mall.

Goodbred feels that he can labor under the circumstances just as well, however, and means to collect the rubber game.

Canavara dropped the opener and Browne pitched the next. It is now up to the Thursday nominee. He is a blooming head off or furnish an adequate reason why.

After Thursday's matinee the tribe puts out for Chattanooga where four games are scheduled in three days. Following the completion of the series with the Lookouts they return to Russellwood for tiffs with the Yols.

Boy, that's the best of the ball content will assume its most hectic state!

Low Christenbury broke up thence Wednesday in the eleventh when he lifted a sacrifice fly to deep right. Following the completion of the series with the Lookouts they return to Russellwood for tiffs with the Yols.

There were several outstanding features in the affair Wednesday. First of all was the brilliant work of the winning run of a 3-2 game. Carl had reached first after a soak in the ribs. Manda's score settled the fight a tussle as the Chicks have been guilty of this season.

Griffin made a peach of a stop on Summa in the first and pegged to Brown in time for a double at first. Brown covered the bag in fine style.

Summa then played it even—Steven in the fourth, when he went to the ditch and pulled in Coltenberger's long fly.

THAT NOISE.

That loud noise you heard about 5 p.m. was not another bomb exploding from the sky. It was merely the huge frame of Pug Griffin sliding ten yards along the ground while in pursuit of Ed Harris' foot in the seventh. Griffin couldn't have done any better with a pair of skates.

Griffin made a rasping trip to right center in the eighth, and couldn't move an inch farther. Glazier had the Pug's leg in a vise. Griffin was a straw through after Lewis flipped a weak pop to first. Blachoff paddled the ome and landed a base hit. Griffin was a straw through after Lewis flipped a weak pop to first. Blachoff paddled the ome and landed a base hit.

Five Memphis Players Qualify for Play in Championship for Tennessee State Title. Chattanooga Wins Match.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 21.—Henry H. Wezzler, Jr., 17-year-old golfer, of Memphis, was medalist yesterday in the qualifying round of the annual state tournament. The kid from the Bluff City turned in a fine card of 78. L. L. Graves, of Knoxville, and Robert Gardner, of Nashville, were next with 79.

The results yesterday permit five Memphis players to remain in the hunt. Knoxville topped the list, however, with 15 against 8 for Chattanooga, 4 for Nashville and 1 each for Sewanee and Jackson.

The five Memphis entrants who qualified for play in the championship flight are: Henry Wezzler, Jr., 17; James Parker, 18; M. J. Condon, 15; C. W. Patterson, 18; Leo Carter, 18.

Chattanooga won the team prize with an aggregate score of 225. Memphis was next, Knoxville finished third and Nashville finished fourth.

The work of Wezzler furnished the surprise of the opening day despite the fact that he has come here with a fine reputation and had been looked upon as the probable winner of the title. He is said to have a strong rival in the championship match.

First round matches start today. The visiting golfers are planning their faith on Morton Road, Jr., to uphold the club honors. Rose holds the amateur record for the links with a 71 score which is considered an excellent amateur score for the Cherokee course. Rose will be supported by an excellent team of local golfers comprising Victor Harker, I. L. Graves, R. K. Gibson and D. W. Graves.

The latter is an excellent amateur golfer and has been looked upon as the probable winner of the title. He is said to have a strong rival in the championship match.

Among the most formidable of the visiting golfers is Bob Gardner, probably Nashville's best bet for the title. Tom Morris, Nashville, who holds the record for the Nashville course with a 74 and is considered one of the best golfers of middle Tennessee, is also in the field.

In the professional flight, J. E. Dickson, golf instructor at the Cherokee country club, is the favorite. He holds the record for the course here with a 68 score. Mr. Dickson will meet some of the best golfers in the state in the early part of the present baseball season.

Bill Brown and Paul Andrews, of Memphis, will both be in the professional flight, while Chattanooga and Nashville will be represented by James McKinnis and Ed Harris.

Especially keen is the rivalry between the three Knoxville professionals.

GOOD PITCHING, LACKED BY TIGERS FOR YEARS, PUTS THEM IN FLAG HUNT THIS SEASON IN AMERICAN; LEONARD PUTS HEART IN OTHERS

BY N. E. BROWN.

Sign a copy of Tigers.

Mighty signs of sweat.

Now look what they've got!

You've said it and so have a million other fans. The Tigers are getting the pitching, sweet pitching!

And at last they have the hurlers to go with their willow wenders.

The good pitching of four men—Dutch Leonard, Howard Ehmke, George Daus and Bernie Boland—has given them the needed defense and they are knocking at the pennant door of the American League.

For the past several years the Tigers have had enough slugging players on their list to break up the league. Cobb and Crawford, together, formed a wrecking crew which made the team the most potent offensive force in the American League for several years. When Crawford's back gave out Bobby Veach took his place.

The addition of Harry Heilmann and George Slaughter, a stronger attack than ever. Then along came Flagstad, who jumped from the bushes into the Tiger pitching crew and gave the Jem-nigantes three slugging batters over 320 at the very start of the season.

Out-jumping pitchers were ineffective and it took eight or ten runs a game to win for the Tigers. The opposing pitchers weren't that charitable.

Then Dutch Leonard looked at playing with New York and the Tigers grabbed him for $10,000. Leonard got away to a poor start and the Tiger fans saw no hope.

Soon Leonard began to win. The knowledge that he had a world's series veteran, a man who had been through the mill for years, to help them seemed to put heart into the other hurlers and they hit a stride that amazed the league ever since.

Boland and Daus have been doing good work for the Tigers in the several seasons they have hurled for Jennings, but couldn't carry the burden. Ehmke and Leonard's pitching was not so good as to a poor start and the Tiger fans saw no hope.
